Routt County Deposits in Colorado Can Supply Nation With Fuel for Years.

COAL SHORTAGE END NEAR

LINE LOOKS TO SALT LAKE AS DISTRIBUTING CENTER.

Relief is in sight for Salt Lake from the regular fall coal shortages which are with the arrival of winter's first ming contain vast coal deposits, Utah on the chest, and you will cure your against John M. Christensen, was filed by freezes every winter because enough coal cannot be obtained by local coal dealers to supply the demand. The relief in sight is promised by the Moffat road. This line now in course of construction from Denver to Salt Lake pierces the Yampa coal fields in Routt county, Colorado. These have been examined by the government and the expert engineers who made the examination show that there is between 900 and 1,200 square miles of good bituminous and anthracite coal fields in Routt county. This one source can supply the nation with coal if necessary.

Rumor has had it time and time again that the Moffat road is to become a part of the Rio Grande system between Denof the Rio Grande system between Denver and Salt Lake. Grand Junction and other points on the main line of the Rio Grande have been reported as junction points, but there is a more widely held belief that the Moffat road will be built through to Salt Lake to get a share of coast business over the Salt Lake Route. Present surveys substantiate this belief, and there has been no official announcement made that the line is not to be built from Routt county through northeastern Utah to Salt Lake.

Fuel Demand Growing.

While the regular coal shortage is said to be created, not through lack of coal, but through lack of equipment, brought on each fall by an unusual demand for cars, relief is promised in the building of another line through a coal field just across the Utah line. The Moffat road cuts in the neighborhood of 300 miles from the distance between Denver and Salt Lake, and it has the most direct route to Salt Lake. With the industrial growth of the west making unheard of growth of the west making unheard of strides, a shortage in all necessary sup-plies is being felt with each succeeding trides, a shortage in all necessary sup-bles is being felt with each succeeding lear. Railroads are being built in all lirections in Utah and states to the west. Tah is enjoying at present an unprece-Utah is enjoying at present an unprecedented industrial activity. Interurban lines are planned. Mills, factories and establishments of all kinds are being built and when in operation these will draw heavily upon the western fuel fields. While the Moffat coal fields in Routt county can supply all points between the Missouri river and the coast, Utah will be first served. An enormous coast and be first served. An enormous coast and intermediate business is assured the new road over the Salt Lake Route. With the Salt Lake Route reaching the most important mining districts in Nevada, a big need of fuel will be felt in the Sagebrush state.

and to aid him in mapping out his future plans. Mr. Weston's report showed that there are at least 900 square miles of coal fields in Routt county. The gist of the report was published in booklet form for general reading. Any doubt which general reading. Any doubt which may have been held toward this report, which naturally was regarded as one compiled by an employe of the company interested, has been settled by a report submitted to the government by two experts who spent the summer of 1905 in the coal fields. This report estimated the total area at 1.200 square miles. This included forty square miles of anthracite deposits, the balance being high-grade bituminous coal, lignites excluded. In thirty-nine instances the government's report showed working seams to have an average width of eight feet. The railroads company's of eight feet. The railroads company's report does not vary to any extent from that made by the government's engineers. The report of the latter shows the coal to be better in quality, if anything. The road is being graded in the southeastern part of the field, and it is expected will reach the heart of the district within a year. Unlike menuices trict within a year. Unlike many west-ern railroads, the Moffat road is not affil-lated with any coal company.

BALLAST CARS COMING.

Western Pacific Is Assuming Airs of Big Railroad.

Big Railroad.

The Western Pacific has acquired every foot of timber tract along its right of way and in doing so showed great foresight. With lumber in record-brerking demand in the west as a result of a combination of affairs, railroads have difficulty in securing lumber for its many purposes in railroad construction. The disaster in San Francisco has resulted in a demand for every foot of lumber and building in Nevada has thrown all lumber companies behind in their orders. The Western Pacific is using thousands of ties in laying its tracks across Utah and through Nevada towards the coast edge of California, but as it has its own tracts and mills, track-laying and building is going ahead without interruption so far as lumber is concerned. Trains of cars loaded with ties, cut and all ready for laying, are passing through Salt Lake constantly to supply the track-end camps. The new road is beginning to assume the air of a big line already. Engines with "Western Pacific" printed on their cabs and tenders are being thrown into shape in the Rio Grande shops here and cars are traveling back and forth over the eighty-five miles of track now built to the desert from Salt Lake. The new engines are the standard, heavy "hog-back" type and as soon as fires can be built in their boxes will be pulling trains loaded with material over the new line. Engines No. boxes will be pulling trains loaded with material over the new line. Engines No.

Attempt to Keep Western Pacific Out of Los Angeles Reported.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 14.-Foreclosure proceedings were commenced today against the Bakersfield and Ventura Raiiroad company to secure payment of mort-gages amounting to $2,000,000, held by the late Eben Smith, who was president of the company.

The action brings to a climax the affairs of a railway venture that was the pet scheme of Major H. M. Russell, who says he will fight the foreclosure to the end.

Major Russell says that the action is but another move to keep Gould and his Western Pacific rairroad out of Los Angeles. He denies the rumer that Senator Clark has bought the controlling interest in the Bakersfield & Ventura railway, but on the other hand admits that it is

The Yampa coal deposits in Routt county have been examined by engineers in the emoloy of the Moffat road and the government. W. Weston, mining engineer in charge of the industrial, land and mineral department of the Denver, Northwestern & Pacific (Moffat road), commenced the work of making an exhaustive report to D. H. Moffat, its president. A year was consumed in this work and was performed to inform Mr. Moffat on the traffic to be expected from that source begins to open and remains at "danger" until closed again. The feature of this switch is its accuracy in signaling the engineer. The old target switches have permitted as many serious wrecks hap-pening in turning to "clear" before the switch was closed entirely. The engineer would see the "clear" signal and go ahead into a partially open switch. Mistakes like this are prevented by the dwarf switch.
